Utes Apportion Tribal Assests At Recent Meets

At meetings held by the governing bodies of the Ute Indians and the mixed bloods in Ft. Duchesne recently there was a settlement of some of the property belonging to the tribe.

The mixed bloods, who are now the Affiliated Ute Citizens of Utah, will take the ranger station at Rock Creek. All other buildings which include welfare buildings and community buildings are left for the full bloods. The station at Rock Creek is valued at $300, and the other buildings have a valuation of $406,454. The fact that the buildings which the full bloods will have are of greater value will be considered in the final settlement.
